Introduction

This issue contains information on Japanese databases which are available in Japan.
It contains 1,243 entries of Japanese original databases out of 2,598 available databases in Japan (including those made in overseas).
Although 833 of the 1,243 commercial databases are serving overseas users, some of them may be restricted to use.
This directory is designed to introduce Japanese databases for anyone who wants to know about them which may meet his or her needs for Japanese information.

1. Definition of Database in this Directory

In this directory, a database is defined as follows:"a database is a set of data that are arranged and unified into computer-retrievable form".

2. Criteria for Inclusion in this Directory

A database included in this directory must meet conditions as follows:A database must be
(1) produced by Japanese database industries, such as private database companies or public organizations which deal with databases.
(2) available to the public in Japan (and must not be an inhouse system).
(3) reported with a prescribed form to Ministry of International Trade and Industry(MITI).
(MITI annually edits the forms to publish "Database Daicho Souran" [directory of databases available in Japan].)
Therefore, this directory includes available databases produced in Japan.
And they are not limited for online, so that, distribution methods of them might be online or any other methods using computer-readable media such as flexible disk, CD-ROM, magnetic tape, etc.

3. Further Information

If you need further information related to this directory, please contact the publisher, Promotion Department of Database Promotion Center, Japan(DPC).
This issue is edited by Keisuke Okuzumi(Database Promotion Director) and Shigekazu Tsuji(Database Promotion Manager). We welcome your comments and requests to make the next issue meet your needs.
For a detailed overview of Japanese database industries, order a copy of "Databases in Japan 1998" published by Planning Department of DPC.

Using this Directory

This directory mainly consists of six sections as follows:
1. Descriptions of Japanese Databases
2. Subject Index
3. Producer Index
4. Vendor Index
5. Abbreviation List
6. Appendix

(Each section is arranged in alphabetical order)

If you know the name of the database, see the section one. Then you will find information about the database. If you want to select a database from many Japanese databases, refer the section two. Using the subject in which you are interested, you can find the databases you need.
In case you know the name of the organization and you have a need to know what kind of databases are dealt with, see the section three or four.
Before you try to access to a Japanese database, you would better contact with the vendor of it, because every Japanese database is not accessible from overseas.
Therefore, the Appendix which contains some tables regarding Japanese Databeses Accessible Overseas is convenient for you.

Principal Activities of Database Promotion Center, Japan

1. Financial Assistance for Database Construction and Support to R&D for Databases

DPC offers financial assistance to help offset the high cost of construction of, and long period required to realize returns on investments in, Japanese original databases deemed essential for the national economy or society.

DPC also gives its support to R&D projects on basic hardware and software technologies necessary to improve the functions and performance of databases.

2. Clearing Services

DPC offers a clearing service for queries received concerning the contents of available databases in Japan. It also provide similar clearing services for enquiries concerning the types of information not yet contained in commercial databases, but which are available through public organizations.

3. Studies and Surveys

DPC regularly conducts studies and surveys into the situation surrounding databases and the various problems associated with their operation, such as questions of copyright.

4. Education,Propagation and Training

DPC carries out a number of educational and propagational activities aimed at promoting the general understanding and utilization of databases in Japan.

5. International Information Exchange

DPC engages in information exchanges with other nations, informing them of the existence of Japanese databases and encouraging the construction of international databases produced on a cooperative basis.

DPC also undertakes other activities deemed necessary to enable it to achieve its stated goals.
